

- Meridian Surveyors will complete a survey of the property the church is located on in the next several weeks so we know exactly where our lot lines are.
- We are looking for someone to do a valuation of the parsonage property.
- We will be visiting some churches that have added additions and/or speaking with members of their building committees to learn as much as possible from them on a variety of topics.
- Our committee met with Don Diedrich of Capelle and Diedrich Construction of Fond du Lac and Tom Meikeljohn, architect from their company on October 16th. We talked to them about our three building options (addition to our current church, move the church and add an addition and build new.) We talked about potential features we would like in each of these options and will meet again on Thursday, November 14th at which point they will come back with some sketches and ideas for our review. We will meet again with them on Dec 11th when they hope to have more detailed drawings. The goal is to have prices attached to their drawings by late January and ready for a presentation to the congregation. There will be no charges for their services.
- We are checking into potential new locations where we could either move the church to or build new.

We believe the key to this process is to learn from other churches, keep an open mind and heart while being respectful of everyone's hope and dreams for the future of this church so the process becomes something that brings us together with a common goal. We asked for your continued prayer for us as we work through this process on your behalf and that of the future of St. Paul's.
